History

Samut Songkhram is a small province, near Bangkok just one and a half hour drive from Bangkok. Visitor can find old Thai traditions and cultures in the city with coconut and fruit plantations all around, or see old time floating market at ThaKha Floating Market. Samut Songkhram is a very nice province for local and international tourists to visit.

Samut Songkhram or Mae Klong was originally connected with Ratchaburi Province. During early Rattanakosin Period it was called "Outer Garden" where Bangkok was "Inner Garden"

Mae Klong was separated from Ratchaburi during Dhonburi was former Thai capital, King Taksin, The Great had won the war with Burmese army in Tambon Bangkung or Wat Bangkung now.

Samut Songkhram is 72km south of Bangkok with the area of just 416 sq.km and only 3 districts: Mueang, Amphawa and Bang KhonDhi. The province in the north is Samut Sakhon, on the west and south is Ratchaburi and Phetchaburi and on the east meets Thai Gulf.
